To be honest, some days I completely am oblivious to [Unitrends] running. I have notifiers to check if failures happen, but they are so few and far between I'm pretty comfortable. With Unitrends, I'm confident that each backup that says that it succeeded is a success, as every test I've done comes back with a success.

Customer Profile

David Myers handles a clinic of 29 providers, growing soon to 31, with about 250 ancillary support staff, and they also have picked up their Radiology practice (separate company) handling a PACS system. Anything with electrons is his responsibility.

The Challenge

West Wichita Family Physicians, P.A. used to use Backup Exec with a tape drive, but the jobs could run days for certain workloads. Myers told us, "[I] don't have time to fiddle around with products." They had just started virtualization, and Backup Exec wasn't reliable, and it would be extremely expensive to backup virtual machines, especially with no other option than tape in-house.

The Solution

They were impressed by the ease of use of the Unitrends solution. "I don't have a vast breadth of backup tool knowledge, but this was the first backup product that I was really able to "fire and forget". To be honest, some days I completely am oblivious to it running. I have notifiers to check if failures happen, but they are so few and far between I'm pretty comfortable. With Unitrends, I'm confident that each backup that says that it succeeded is a success, as every test I've done comes back with a success."

The Results

Myers said, "Unitrends allows me to save time on backup management, allowing me to spend my time elsewhere, and giving me less headaches. Also, I don't have to jump through any hoops to get help", he added.
